“Let us Classmates be for ever.”

P R E F A C E.

THE biographies of the living graduates of the class, in this report, have, for the most part, been compiled from letters received from the persons themselves. In a few instances, no notice was taken of the circular which was sent asking for information: but there is no graduate who is now living, respecting whose life, during the past six years, some particulars are not given; and in nearly every case, I have been able to present a full report. Thirty-nine persons were temporarily connected with the class at different times, in our college course. Twelve of these have died. Of the rest, a few have sent me accounts of their post-collegiate lives, and by inquiries of friends and relatives, I have learned something concerning others; but, respecting quite a number, I have been unable to learn any thing beyond the date of their leaving college, and their residence at that time.

It is due to all who have sent accounts of their history to state, that the Class Secretary alone is responsible for the fulness or brevity of the biographies as they appear in the report. I have been guided by the single purpose to present in the case of each member of the class, such facts of his history (however ascertained) as he would naturally look for in the record of the lives of his classmates, and which the rest of the class would not be likely to learn from any other source.

The report has been prepared in the midst of the engrossing studies and duties of the theological school; but no pains have been spared to make it as complete as possible. Doubtless many defects, both in matter and style, will be discovered; and after careful correction and revision of the proofs, a few errors of the press still remain. I venture, however, to express the hope that the report, imperfect as it is, will find a hearty welcome from every member of the class.

The memoirs of those classmates who fell in the war have been written chiefly from data and facts furnished by the volumes of the Harvard Memorial Biographies. I am under great obligations to the editor, Colonel T. W. Higginson, for the use of the manuscript portion of his work relating to our class.

I am also indebted to my fellow-laborer on the Class Committee, Mr. William G. Colburn, for many valuable suggestions, and for constant assistance and advice in correcting the proofs.

H. G. SPAULDING,

Class Secretary.
